

PREVIEW WOMEN'S INDIVIDUAL LARGE HILL SAPPORO – Saturday and Sunday 13-14 Jan 2024

Nika Prevc

- Nika Prevc comes into Japan leading the overall World Cup standings. She won four of the last five individual World Cup events.
- Prevc (4) can equal her brother Peter Prevc (15 in 2015/16, including 1 win in Sapporo) and Primož Peterka (7 in 1996/97) in Slovenian ski jumpers (male or female) with more than four individual World Cup wins in a single season.
- Prevc can become the first woman to win three consecutive individual World Cup events since Sara Marita Kramer recorded four consecutive wins in December 2021.
- Prevc (4) can equal Nika Križnar (5) on most World Cup wins among Slovenian women.
- Prevc (18 years and 304 days old on 13 January) can be the third youngest woman to record five World Cup wins, following Sara Takanashi (16y-097d old during 5th win) and Sarah Hendrickson (17y-194d).

Other contenders

- The last six individual World Cup events in Sapporo have been won by six different women. Katharina Schmid (7 January 2023) and Silje Opseth (8 January 2023) each won a World Cup event here last season.
- Only Sara Takanashi (13) and Maren Lundby (7) have recorded as many individual World Cup wins in Japan as Eva Pinkelnig (4, including a win in Sapporo on 12 January 2020).
- Pinkelnig recorded a podium finish in each of the last eight individual World Cup events in Japan (4 wins, 1 second place and 3 third places).
- Two women have recorded more than one individual World Cup win in Sapporo: Sara Takanashi (6) and Maren Lundby (4).
- Yuki Ito won the inaugural individual World Cup event of this season (Lillehammer, 2 December), but she has not reached the podium since.
- Ito claimed three of her eight individual World Cup wins in Japan (including a win in Sapporo on 14 January 2017), more than in any other country.
- Joséphine Pagnier recorded three podium finishes in the first three individual World Cup events this season (2nd, 1st, 1st), but failed to reach the podium since (4th, 7th, 12th, 14th, 8th).
- Pagnier (2) can surpass Coline Mattel (2) on most individual World Cup wins among French women.
- Abigail Strate recorded three podium finishes in the last four World Cup events (3rd, 2nd, 3rd, 12th). The best result by a Canadian woman in an individual World Cup in Sapporo was a fourth place by Atsuko Tanaka in January 2014 (normal hill).
- Nika Križnar secured her first individual World Cup podium finish in Villach on 4 January since two third places on the same hill last season.

- Križnar has 25 individual World Cup podium finishes but has never secured one in Japan, with her best result being a fourth place in Zao on 21 January 2018 (normal hill).
- Only Nika Prevc (4) has recorded as many individual World Cup podium finishes this season as Eirin Maria Kvandal (1 second place, 3 third places). She can join Maren Lundby (4) and Silje Opseth (1) as Norwegian female winners here.
- Jacqueline Seifriedsberger claimed her only World Cup win in Sapporo 11 years ago on 3 February 2013, during the first weekend the women's World Cup visited Sapporo.
