

FACTS & FIGURES – Women’s slalom in Levi

- Mikaela Shiffrin (USA) has won the women’s slalom World Cup a record seven times in Levi, including triumphing in three of the past four races.
- Shiffrin was fourth in the first of a Levi World Cup double-header last season, before winning the second race.
- The USA star has only finished off the podium three times in her 15 World Cup slaloms in Levi.
- After seven wins in 10 races last season, Shiffrin has a record 60 World Cup slalom titles to her name.
- The slalom World Cup Crystal Globe she won last season was the eighth of her career, extending her record as the most successful female World Cup slalom skier.
- Shiffrin has won 97 times on the World Cup circuit so far.

- Petra Vlhova (SVK) who has won the slalom in Levi six times, will not be taking part this year as she continues to build up to her comeback after injury.

- Lena Duerr (GER) enjoyed the best season of her career last season, with four podium finishes in her first six races helping her to second in the slalom standings.
- The German finished second and third in Levi last season, part of a record of four podium places and two fourth-place finishes in her past six Levis races.
- Duerr has won one World Cup slalom race, in Spindleruv Mlyn (CZE) in January 2023.

- Wendy Holdener (SUI) is making her slalom comeback in Levi after fracturing her ankle in December 2023.
- Holdener has finished second three times in Levi, in 2016, 2019 and 2022.
- The Swiss skier has two World Cup slalom wins and 33 podium finishes to her name.

- Michelle Gisin (SUI) finished inside the top-10 nine times in slalom last season.
- Anna Swenn Larsson (SWE) ended last season with a win (Soldeu) two podiums and two fifth place finishes in her final five races.
- She has a best of second in Levi, in 2022.

- Zrinka Ljusic (CRO) has yet to win a World Cup slalom but the 20-year-old was second three races in a row last season.

- Leona Popovic (CRO) was second in Levi last season, just her second World Cup podium finish.

- Katharina Liensberger (AUT), the 2021 slalom world champion, has finished third three times in Levi (twice in 2020 and once last season).