

FACTS & FIGURES – Viessmann Nordic Combined World Cup – Seefeld

MEN

- Seefeld will host the TRIPLE for the men for the 11th time. It is the 12th TRIPLE overall since 2014 with the 2019 TRIPLE taking place in Chaux-Neuve (FRA).
- It is the first TRIPLE with a 10km Mass Start on Friday, a 7.5km Compact on Saturday and a 12.5km Gundersen on Sunday.
- Defending champion Jarl Magnus Riiber (NOR) won all three competitions in Seefeld last year, claiming his third Seefeld TRIPLE victory.
- Five-time champion Riiber leads the overall standings by 72 points with German duo Vinzenz Geiger and Julian Schmid (100 points behind) his closest pursuers.
- Johannes Lamparter (AUT), up to fourth in the standings after a second place and a victory in Schonach, will be competing on home snow in Seefeld, where he has had seven podiums - including two wins - in his last nine competitions.
- Lamparter won the TRIPLE in 2023 and placed third last year on Day 1.
- Joergen Graabak (NOR) claimed three second places in Seefeld last season while Stefan Rettenegeger (AUT) reached his first podium last year with a third place on Sunday.

WOMEN

- This will be the first ever TRIPLE in the Viessmann FIS Nordic Combined Women's World Cup, with three different events in successive days.
- Ida Marie Hagen (NOR) has won the first six World Cup competitions of the season and the last 10 overall going back to last season.
- The defending champion won both events in Seefeld last year, part of an ongoing run of 15 wins in her last 18 individual World Cup events.
- Nathalie Armbruster (GER) reached two podium finishes in Seefeld last year with two third places.
- Gyda Westvold Hansen (NOR) won both competitions at the World Cup premiere in Seefeld in 2023 and placed second behind Hagen in the Individual Compact last year.
