

FACTS & FIGURES – Viessmann Nordic Combined World Cup – Lillehammer

WOMEN

- Gyda Westvold Hansen (NOR) has won the first two women's competitions of the season in Lillehammer – all Gundersens – for each of the past three years.
- Ida Marie Hagen (NOR), with two second-places, and Mari Leinan Lund (NOR) – two thirds – completed a Norwegian sweep of the podium in both events 12 months ago, but Lund will be absent this year as she recovers from a knee injury
- Nathalie Armbruster (GER) celebrated her first World Cup podium with a second place in Lillehammer 2022
- Lisa Hirner (AUT) reached the podium in Lillehammer two times. For the first time in her career 2021 as well as 2022, both times as third

MEN

- Jarl Magnus Riiber (NOR) has won four of the last five men's competitions in Lillehammer over the past three seasons, including both Gundersens last year.
- Jens Luraas Oftebro (NOR) has also performed well on home snow with a win and two runners-up finishes in Lillehammer over the past two years.
- Jorgen Graabak (NOR) finished on the podium in both last year's competitions at the ski resort in southern Norway
- Current World Cup leader Vinzenz Geiger (GER) twice finished third in Lillehammer in December 2022
- Johannes Lamparter (AUT) reached the podium twice in Lillehammer 2021 and 2023 both times in second place behind Jarl Magnus Riiber
