

FACTS & FIGURES – Viessmann Nordic Combined World Cup – Ramsau

WOMEN

- Ida Marie Hagen (NOR) took the first of her 11 World Cup victories in Ramsau 12 months ago on 16 December 2023.
- The defending champion has won 11 of her last 14 World Cup events, including nine of the past 10 and the last six in a row.
- Until Hagen's (NOR) first win a year ago, Gyda Westvold Hansen (NOR) had won the last four women's competitions in Ramsau.
- The first ever women's World Cup competition was held in Ramsau on 18 December 2020, when Hansen finished second on her World Cup debut.
- Minja Korhonen (FIN) celebrated her first World Cup podium in Ramsau in 2023.
- The World Cup premiere of the Individual Compact format also took place in Ramsau 2023.

MEN

- Jarl Magnus Riiber (NOR) has a record 75 World Cup wins among 102 podiums after a first and a third in Lillehammer.
- Riiber has had five World Cup wins in Ramsau and only once not finished in the top two – a third place – at the venue over the last six years. He twice finished second last year.
- Johannes Lamparter (AUT) won both the Mass Start and Compact competitions in Ramsau last December, and also had a second place there in 2022.
- Julian Schmid (GER) has finished on the podium in four of the first five events this season, including three second-places. His last individual World Cup win was in February 2023.
- Vinzenz Geiger (GER) collected four victories in Ramsau so far due to his strength on the demanding cross-country course.
