

How to Cover The FIS Alpine World Cup

Thank you for your interest in the athletes and events of the Audi FIS Alpine Ski World Cup. We have a unique sporting tour with a structure that can feel a bit unfamiliar for media professionals with little prior experience at our events. But we're a friendly bunch and deeply appreciate all media interest in our sport. We've outlined the best methods by which you can gather content at our races or obtain information from afar to assist with your media projects.

ON-SITE AT ONE OF OUR EVENTS

1. Apply For Accreditation

Accreditation requests for World Cup events must be submitted individually to each Local Organising Committee (LOC) for the venue you wish to attend.

Links to media accreditation for each World Cup venue are available on our website: Alpine > Media Information > Media Resources > Media Accreditation & Chiefs of Media

<https://www.fis-ski.com/en/alpine-skiing/media-information>

2. Purchase Video/TV Rights [if applicable]

The multimedia rights of the World Cup belong to the National Ski Associations who commission broadcast companies to manage those rights on their behalf. If you wish to film moving pictures with any kind of camera (even for social media use) or need footage from previous World Cup races, you must purchase the rights and obtain the necessary permission.

For National rights

Please contact the Chief of Media at the Local Organising Committee (LOC) for full information. The contacts are available on our website:

Alpine > Media Information > Media Resources > Chiefs of Media

<https://www.fis-ski.com/en/alpine-skiing/media-information>

For International rights

- o For events hosted in Austria:
Please contact EBU: chappuis@eurovision.net - eichwalder@eurovision.net
- o For events hosted anywhere else in the world:
Please contact Infront Italy: maddalena.ercolani@infrontsports.com

3. Request Interviews

Many National Ski Associations employ Team Press Attaches (TPAs) to help coordinate interview requests. Please direct your athlete and coach requests to the individuals listed below. During the race, you can directly interact with the TPAs in the Mixed Zone. Please speak up and verbally request the athlete interviews you desire.

Additionally, LOCs host a winners' press conference with top athletes (typically first, second, and third places) immediately after the awards presentation in a location determined by the LOC Chief of Media (commonly in the media center or sub media center). In the event that a press conference will not be held or the format will differ, the LOC Chief of Media will inform all accredited media in advance.
